Last April, Melissa opened up to PEOPLE about how her bond with her mini-me has evolved over the years.

Of the University of Delaware student, she said, "I have like a new friend, this is now gonna be, she's like a girlfriend. Now, instead of a child, even [though] obviously she's my child, but it's like you can start to hang out with her now and talk about things and discuss things that are going on in her friends' lives."

When Antonia flew the nest, Melissa said that the moment, which was filmed for RHONJ, was "bittersweet." Showing it on camera was her way of hoping to be relatable to other moms out there. "It also felt like something was happening in my life because I'm like, 'Where's my child going? What point are we at here? Nobody needs their diapers changed. What's happening?'"
